Dear Commissioner,

I write a personal observation derived from my 78 years of workplace and personal life experiences with good old-fashioned greed. Your Interim Report observation about "greed" did not surprise me and should be continued in your Final Report in the form of a hard-hitting Foreward. It has, and will continue to, set the tone of the Royal Commission and its post-event effectiveness - and not just for its potential to have a finite lifespan as a "political" document. I would respectfully suggest the following form of words as having the potential to get ALL readers' attention. The words are:-

"Of all human frailties, good old-fashioned greed will beat most others into second place. Whilst pursuit of power; privilege and manipulative control are also drivers of greed, the dominant currency of greed is money. Greed is a societal cancer that also has the potential to consume its host. That simple!"

I will not bore you with the many life experiences that formed the above words in at least one young man's mind and which have reinforced that mindset ever since.

Yours sincerely
