Dear Mr Hayne

In the light of the corruption and predatory conducted which has been demonstrated by the banks by your Royal Commission, I ask you please demand the implementation of Glass Steagall to protect the public from further and future damage by the banks.

I would also ask of you to look at the bail-in laws and have the law clarified to ensure the public and business deposits are safe from confiscation / theft due to the improper practices of the banks. Why should the depositors be made to pay for the mistakes and bad practices conducted by the banks ?

I would also like to see the book thrown at the officer in the banks who have broken the law, Without personal consequences for their actions, there is no deterrent for illegal activity.

I fine on the bank, is a fine on the share holders. The banking officers see fines for illegal activity as the cost of doing business. It has no affect on them what so ever.

Thank you for your time and work for the public.
