Greetings,

While this may be only the beginning of the end as far as our current financial model and system is concerned, justice still needs to be served.

I am lodging my submission to nationalise the banks, plain and simple. Money and banking was NEVER supposed to be in the full palm and control of private companies and individuals.

If Nationalising the banks is not at all possible, our government needs to extricate itself from any banking lobbying and influence, and have full oversight and control over banking conduct and enact new and binding legislation to keep them in line so to speak. Apra is now a mute and powerless organisation, and has not been influential for some time.

I put my full support behind any changes that will bring more power to our country and take back the power from private banks to wield their influence in our government halls of power.

Regards,
