

Commissioner Haines,

Dear Sir,

When it comes to finances, I would be classified as relatively naïve. How an ordinary person can be across all matters that generally involve the many facets regarding dealing with various aspects of banking, insurance, mortgages, managing a family, health issues and even the responsibility associated with driving a car. Thus we are reliant on a high degree of honesty from all business and institutions we have to deal with.