The Banks have been actively involved in many spurious dealings without any real Government control or intervention for many years and I feel there is a lens of behavior present that might take many years to change. If the Glass-Steagel measures aren't implemented the Banks can continue their errant behavior and cause catastrophic events for the general public. I would like to see the separation of Banking take place and for the people to be safe-guarded from losing their savings due to the Banks largess.
